

Elephant Proof Printmakers

Exhibition of printmaking

26 October—21 November 2007

In the Café Gallery

Philippa Merrett, The Pink Elephant - Ajanta, 2007. Hand-coloured etching

Elephant Proof is the name given to a group of artist printmakers from the Saturday printmaking classes at the London College of Communication. This group show includes current students, former students and staff at the college formerly known as The London College of Printing. Many are experienced printmakers who produce work that is diverse in subject matter using techniques such as etching, screen printing and lithography. The London College of Communication has a long tradition of excellence in training students in all methods of print production.

Past exhibition venues of Elephant Proof include:
The Mall Galleries SW1 (2006)
Eckersley gallery SE1 (2007)

Dedication

Daniel Stubbley, 24 September 1969 – 2 September 2007

This exhibition is dedicated to the memory of Daniel Stubbley who died on Sunday 2 September 2007 aged 37. Daniel travelled extensively after completing his Honours degree in Fine Art at Cheltenham School of Art in 1993.

He was a dedicated and prolific artist who painted in all styles from abstract to landscape and figurative work (Please see his website www.danstubbley.com). Sadly his life was cut short in his prime by cancer and he will be greatly missed.

Ian Barraclough, Secret Garden, 2007. Relief and screen print
